This is a suggested itinerary

When you wonder what to do in Singapore and you see all the possibilities of visit and all the places of interest, you quickly understand that it takes well more than 2 or 3 days to visit Singapore ... Even if you do not know the places of interest before a first trip to the city-state, you very quickly realize on the spot that the city is huge and that there are many things to see or to do when visiting. The Singaporean population consists of Chinese, Indian and Malaysian. These different origins offer a truly impressive diversity on many levels: language, religion, culture or even culinary specialties. Therefore, it is almost imperative to these 3 districts for an essential understanding of the city. Indeed, these districts provide a better perception of the impressive cultural diversity that makes up Singapore: Chinatown for the strongest city roots, Little India for a dive into Indian culture and Kampong Glam for Malaysian (and therefore Muslim) culture.

Start the tour will with a leisurely bumboat ride along the Singapore River, a small river with great historical importance. It is the place where Sir Stamford Raffles made as the first trading port in Singapore. The ride will end at Merlion Park by Esplanade Bridge. At Merlion Park, come face to face with Singapore's very own tourism mascot, the Merlion, standing in the foreground, while the structural masterpiece of visionary architect Moshe Safdie, the Marina Bay Sands Hotel stands majestically in its awesome grandeur. Your tour continues with a drive around the Civic District past the Padang, Cricket Club, Parliament House, Supreme Court and City Hall. ### Day 3: Singapore Garden by The Bay

One of the top places to visit in Asia, Gardens by the Bay spans over 247 acres and is a highlight for any visitor to Singapore. Built at a cost of over one billion dollars, the gardens opened in June 2012 and have already been billed as an attraction you cannot miss. The gardens house two domes or conservatories, Cloud Forest and Flower Dome, which are climate-controlled indoor glasshouses. The Flower Dome (the larger of the two) replicates the cool-dry climate of the Mediterranean and South Africa, while the Cloud Forest replicates a cool-moist climate found in Tropical Mountain regions such as Mount Kinabalu on the island of Borneo and high elevation areas in South America. Within the gardens, there are also 18 impressive-looking Super trees (tree-like structures), which are vertical gardens up to 165 feet tall and perform a multitude of functions: Along with providing a bird's eye view of the entire gardens, they also collect rainwater, generate solar power and act as vending ducts for the park's conservatory. During our visit to Gardens by the Bay, we shall visit the Flower Dome and

Cloud Forest, as well as an elevated walkway situated between two of the larger Super trees. Here we can enjoy an impressive aerial view of the gardens. The rest of the day is at your own leisure to explore Singapore! Accommodation at your hotel. [B]
